VILLA NOW LOCATED

Bandit Reported in Mountains Near Parra and Said to Be Contemplating An Attack on American Forces.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, April 24.—General Carranza has asked for an early reply to his note of April 12, suggesting that American troops be recalled from Mexico. This was learned officially today in connection with the fact that Gen. Arredondo, Mexican ambassador, sought an interview with Secretary Lansing. State department officials declined to discuss the matter. The Mexican embassy stated the request had not been transmitted through Mr. Arredondo, but as he was there, it is understood to be made directly through General Carranza to Mexico City. A reply also would be sent through Mr. Rodgers.

San Antonio, April 24.—Francisco Villa, slightly wounded, but not incapacitated, was today reported to have been seen in the mountains near Parra, northwest of Parra. This information which has reached General Funston, is from a source which causes him to regard it as authentic. Villa was reported to be at Parra, about eighty-five miles by trail south-west of Satevo, where the most advanced of Gen. Pershing's forces were yesterday.

Villa Plans Attack.
El Paso, April 24.—According to Mexicans arriving here from the interior today, reports have been spread that Villa is coming north again with the object of attacking the American forces. They say the bandit now has some three hundred followers and will be joined later by Pedro Bracamonte of the Torreon district, who has 1,500 men, and General Carranza, whose command numbers 1,000 men.

American Troops in Clash.
El Paso, April 24.—Early today the police received a report that fighting had broken out between Carranza and American forces at Satevo.

According to police here, the information came from influential sources in the interior. The police claim the report to be true. It is stated several hundred soldiers had been killed in the fighting. At Fort Bliss nothing had been heard of the reported clash at Satevo and investigations were started. Anxiety was expressed in military circles here today over reports from the interior of renewed activity of numerous small bands of bandits roving about the Chihuahua region.

The police have heard that the American troops are to be withdrawn from Mexico. The halting of the operations of the expeditionary force has continued their march on the border, which they have interpreted as a crushing defeat of the "gringos."

The importance of these plans as seen by army officers is that their departure from the border would leave the people, already almost destitute, to desperation, and cause a serious outbreak which might involve the American soldiers.

Credited at Headquarters.
Neither General Bell at Fort Bliss, nor military headquarters at Columbus, N. M., had any information this morning regarding Mexican reports that the troops are now concentrating in the interior. The reports were communicated and thoroughly protected, that is said to be to much more than 250 miles long. Reinforcements are also being sent to Columbus, N. M.

Ready to meet any eventuality, the American expedition will now maintain a military status quo while diplomatic negotiations go forward at Washington. This will require many days, if not weeks.

Villa Pursuit Over.
The pursuit of Francisco Villa is over. That is the belief of army officers at Fort Bliss. The American troops will engage the small wandering bands of Villa bandits that roam northward. Chihuahua. These bands are widely scattered and operate in groups of two or three. While the expedition is at its main base, it will recuperate from the rigors of its rapid dash southward. Official admission has been made that the advances of the American cavalry have been withdrawn northward, and it is understood they have been taken out of the zones where battle and dislike for the Americans is most intense. The withdrawal is designed to prevent clashes during the diplomatic negotiations.

Leave Plan to Funston.
Washington, April 24.—Administration officials are looking to General Funston to carry out a plan for the disposition of the American troops in Mexico. The plans approved by President Wilson and Secretary Baker between Generals Funston and Scott, chief of staff of the army, who went to San Antonio as Secretary Baker's personal representative.

The plans have been formulated generally by the United States will maintain a military status quo beyond the international line, and until the Carranza government has demonstrated ability to exterminate Villa and his outlaws. It is understood the American forces will be so placed as to safeguard American border towns.

ARMY OFFICERS SATISFIED WITH RECRUITS THUS FAR

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, April 24.—While 4,699 men have entered in the army since March 15, when congress authorized an increase of 20,000, army officials today estimated that the actual net gain had been something over 2,000. Army officials said the present recruiting is satisfactory, and above normal.

TRANSPORTATION OF GAME WARDENS HAS BEEN SOLVED NOW?Twenty-Five Motorcycles Purchased for Use of Conservation Department.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 24.—The question of transportation, one of the greatest problems that the commission which is conserving game in Wisconsin has had to deal with, has been solved by the purchase by the state conservation commission of twenty-five motorcycles.

The flying squadron of wardens who use these machines began their work this week and the result will be not only greater efficiency, but greater economy in expense.

The new conservation commission has made an enviable record in the first nine months of its existence. The statement given out by Secretary R. R. Scheibel on April 20th shows a saving of $27,395.58 for the period between July 1, 1915, and March 31, 1916. The service in the meantime has been continued through the winter months. Various departments devoted to the conservation and propagation of game were co-related under the new law. With the advent of the motorcycle squad, the efficiency of their work will be increased still more and a larger percentage of savings will be shown when the annual report is issued.

The motorcycles will make a material reduction in the transportation expenses of the department, said Commissioner W. E. Barber. "It has been the custom since the game wardens were organized to travel by railroads, which took them only to railroad towns and there, in most cases, they were obliged to hire livery to go to the rural districts. The reduction of this expense, however, was not the whole object which inspired the introduction of the motorcycle. The department realized that in order for a warden to obtain the best results, he must become acquainted with the people he is serving. He must come in contact with them at their homes and on their farms. The motorcycle will do this. The reduction of this expense, however, was not the whole object which inspired the introduction of the motorcycle. The department realized that in order for a warden to obtain the best results, he must become acquainted with the people he is serving. He must come in contact with them at their homes and on their farms. The motorcycle will do this.

"The conservation commission anticipates that with instructions which the warden will receive, they will be able to cover the entire state territory and the result will be co-operation in the work of the commission. It is a theory of the present commission that the motorcycle is an important factor to be used in rehabilitating the scattered remnants of wild life in Wisconsin. Courts, criminal warrants and jails have their place in enforcing the game laws, but when the warden is able to understand the need of conservation and the benefits to be derived therefrom, these weapons will be necessary only in the exceptional cases. When the people understand the relations that the wild creatures bear to our civilization, they will stop their destruction and not until then will violations of the game laws cease."

The standing of the old game warden department was lowered because of its connection with politics. This is a statement which will not be denied. The situation which was met by the present commission and its efforts have been to remove the state-wide mental attitude toward the department. It is a fact that the game warden's position depended in a great many cases, upon his ability as a vote getter and not as a conservationist, and to do away with this conception of a game warden, the new commission has been working ever since it was established.

The motorcycle squad is only one of the ideas which we are putting in force and we anticipate great results when they have all been tried out."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Pittsburgh, April 24.—Deputy sheriffs guarding the plant of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company at East Pittsburgh, where 150 men on strike, used their clubs today to force a way through the crowds of strike pickets for workmen trying to enter the shops. The principal fighting was at a bridge where the pickets linked hands across the street along which the workmen passed. There was much disorder before the deputies were called, but it was said that between 2,000 and 3,000 men succeeded in getting inside the works. Seventy-six metal manufacturing companies whose plants are located in Pittsburgh and vicinity announced today they would reduce the working hours in their respective shops. Companies said to employ a total of almost 100,000 men, considered the eight-hour question last week after the employees of a number of shops had demanded an eight-hour day and it had become known that other demands were in preparation.

Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y., April 24.—With state militia guarding the approaches to the munition-making plant of the National Conduit and Cable company, today a strike of 1,000 men after being closed several days because of rioting attending a strike of its employees.

PLEA OF INSANITY
AT WOMAN'S TRIALMrs. Ida S. Rogers Goes on Trial for Murder of Her Two Children in New York Court.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, April 24.—Temporary insanity is pleaded by the defense for Mrs. Ida Sniffen Rogers in her trial begun today for the murder of her two children December 29, 1914. The case is notable because of the public sympathy which has been expressed for Mrs. Rogers.

Prior to the murder, Mrs. Rogers, who was then known as Mrs. Ida Sniffen Walters, and lived in the Bronx at the west side of 170th street, a lawyer, the father of her two children, but to whom she was not married. Rogers had married Miss Caroline Giddings, the sister of a professor at Columbia University, but divided his time between her and the more pretentious home in the Bronx apartment. Despairing of ever being able to marry Rogers, she admitted the administered poison to her two-year-old boy John, and to Loida, a girl of eight months, and to herself. The children died, but Mrs. Walters recovered. After her arrest, Rogers admitted his double life and publicly came to the support of the woman. Mrs. Caroline Giddings Rogers obtained a divorce and Rogers in July last married Mrs. Walters.

The jury was asked to find that Mrs. Rogers appears as chief counsel for his wife.

Prospective jurors were questioned by both sides as to whether they would be influenced by the publicity of the case. The jury was completed within a few hours.

Appleton, April 24.—This afternoon members of the Outagamie county board convened in special session to pass on the $700,000 bonding proposition for good roads, but John Conway, proprietor of the Sherman House, who proposed the bonding proposition and conducted the campaign to a successful ending, was absent. Yesterday he was stricken with appendicitis and taken to Chicago at two o'clock this morning to be operated upon. He is said to be in a critical condition.

THIS WISE DEALER HAS GONE TO BURIED UNDERGROUND.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Athens, Greece, April 24.—With gasoline worth its weight in gold, this story of what a Greek dealer did with 7,000 gallons of the priceless juice, is of interest to American automobile owners.

A squad of French soldiers with shovels, guided by an excited secret service man, dug violently in a field in the outskirts of Salonica last night until they shovelled up upon the steel tanks. The thing had all the earmarks of a submarine plot; the buried treasure consisted of 7,000 gallons of gasoline.

Later in the evening an excited oil dealer of unquestioned standing and much wealth rushed into headquarters and informed Captain Mathieu, of General Sarrail's staff that he owned a tank which had been buried in order to save it from a Zeppelin bomb.

The military authorities permitted him to cover the tanks again.

MISSISSIPPI FLOOD
CARRIES OUT STRIP
OF RAILROAD TRACKBurlington Embankment at East Winona Gives Way, Flooding Acres of Lowlands at La Crosse.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

La Crosse, April 24.—Three hundred feet of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad at East Winona was carried away by the rise of the Mississippi river Sunday and a great sea swept up and over the houses, barns and land and farm houses on the Wisconsin side of the river.

The Burlington embankment has been the protection of a large strip of countryside since the rise of the river nearly a month ago. The constant beating of the river against it finally wore it away and on Sunday a gap of sixty feet was smashed in the levee and the river fell upon the low land, which had been sheltered by it. At the point of the break the river land twelve feet above the level of the Mississippi and the embankment was flooded through with tremendous force. The gap was rapidly widened until today it was fully 300 feet across.

Road Repair Work.
The great drainage district near the Burlington and Great Northern roads, and an army of men is at work today trying to prevent the spread of the break and the loss of the main line of the Burlington system between Chicago and Minneapolis will be out of service for three days at least and perhaps much longer.

The great drainage district near Trempealeau is under water. It was said by Captain W. A. Thompson of La Crosse, head of the drainage company, today that the damage to his company would not be great. La Crosse the river is 12.7 today and rising slowly. It has done no great damage here, but between La Crosse and Winona there are many miles along the Burlington, Chicago & Northwestern and Green Bay & Western railways where the embankments have been subjected for weeks to the strain of high water and where the tracks are barely out of water, and where there is danger of the same thing happening as at East Winona.

Stevens Point, April 24.—It is estimated that the dike which protects the principal residential district here from floods may break. The town of Stevens Point, Wis., has been washed away as a result of rising waters. The last break occurred in 1850 and resulted in a great loss of property. Citizens at that time were obliged to use rafts to escape.

Menominee Flood Curbed.
Marinette, April 24.—The high water in Menominee which carried out a portion of No. 2 mill of the Marinette Lumber Company, today is under control today, and unless there is further rise no great danger is expected. The water is the highest since 1880.

old Beloit man, is presently confined in the Rock county jail, at a private cell, awaiting his preliminary examination in the Beloit municipal court tomorrow Tuesday morning. This morning he is in the cell bank and refused to answer any questions or make any statements relative to the crime with which he is charged—first degree murder. The county jail authorities say Fowler has had a hard word since his arrival and confinement at the jail.

Beloit Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie stated this morning that there were no new developments in the case, and that the only evidence that could be presented at the hearing was purely circumstantial. Until the body of Rudolph Walwig is recovered, the case cannot be cleared up. The police and private detectives that have been handling the baffling case. A clairvoyant is to be brought from Chicago to the residence of Rudolph Walwig, who has been missing for sixteen days, to tell where the man is. In Beloit the general opinion is that Walwig is dead—a victim of foul play, but there is no real evidence that the missing man has met such a fate. Rumors were circulated Saturday that Walwig's corpse had been found at Sugar Creek, eighteen miles west of Beloit, but the police and private detectives investigation was made by detectives Sunday.

scheduled assessments for pavement improvements. The other hearings for the assessment of Oakland and Forest Park boulevard will be held in the afternoon.

It is understood that a number of the South Franklin street property owners will offer strenuous objections to the brick pavement going down on that street. Agitation among a number of the residents on this street has been going on for some time against the proposed pavement with the result that a petition was filed recently to have the street paved with macadam.

The hearing tonight is for the purpose of deciding if the schedule of assessments against the property is equal and fair.

Naval Concentration Board.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, April 24.—Workrooms and factories in all parts of Chicago will be invaded by the war preparationists in Illinois this week under order of the Illinois concentration board. In order to determine what Chicago can do in furnishing munitions in case of war, the board has divided the city into districts. Experts from five national organizations of engineers and chemists will determine the mechanical and industrial capacity of Chicago for producing goods needed in war time.

E. N. Layfield, formerly chief engineer of Chicago Terminal Transfer railway company, has general charge of the Chicago survey. While his field men are securing the facts, Mr. Layfield with another body of traffic engineers, will be completing the best possible transportation plan for the assembling and forwarding of goods needed in war time.

The Illinois committee will cooperate with a similar committee in Indiana as the big munition district around Gary is closely bound up with the Chicago problem relating to war supply transportation.

MAYOR OF VERDUN HOLDS
THE MUNICIPAL MEETINGS
IN TOWN HALL CELLAR

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Verdun, France, April 24.—The Mayor of Verdun spent the early days of the bombardment in the cellars of the town hall, where he conducted official business as usual, undisturbed by the roar of heavy guns and the noise of falling masonry. The Mayor was assisted by seven of the municipal officials, and the chief Customs agent did the cooking for the party.

The Mayor's favorite story of those trying days is an incident of a would-be bridegroom and his wedding feast. "First night of February 26," says the Mayor, "that a very young man who had been mobilized in the Vooges came to us in the town hall cellar while the bombardment was proceeding at its highest pitch. 'What can we do for you?' I asked, 'what I have come to get married,' he replied."

"'Married?' I asked in amazement, looking out of a grating at a cloud of dust just thrown up by a small shell. 'Certainly,' he went on. 'The bans have been published, the date fixed for today, and I have obtained permission from the military authorities to get married. But I cannot find my fiancée.'"

"We made inquiries and learned that the young woman had fled with the rest of the population. The future husband had brought a fine supply of provisions and wine for the wedding feast. As the shells continued to fall, the bride refused to remain with us for that day while he shared his good things with us."

German Government Will Go to Great Lengths to Preserve Friendly Relations, It Is Understood.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, April 24.—Confidential dispatches from Ambassador Gerard at Berlin indicate Germany will make certain concessions to the United States in response to the note demanding abandonment of present methods of submarine warfare.

Whether the concessions will be sufficiently broad to meet the American demands, appears uncertain. However, officials related an air of hopefulness for an amicable settlement on the issue.

It is understood Ambassador Gerard has received broad intimations that the German government is prepared to go to great lengths to preserve friendly relations with the United States. He is understood to have gained the impression from officials of the Berlin foreign office including Foreign Minister Von Jagow.

The Berlin government is confronted with finding a way to satisfy the United States without resorting to a submarine campaign.

Mr. Gerard's dispatches, of a highly confidential nature, were received during the night.

Delivers Allies' Reply.
Washington, April 24.—The British ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring Rice, today delivered to Secretary Lansing his government's reply to the American protest against interference with neutral commerce. France concurs in the main with her ally, but will particularly insist on her point of view. The note is a legal and technical defense of sea policy of the two nations.

Peace Resolution.
The senate today referred to the foreign relations committee on motion of Senator Newlands, his resolution submitted last week urging the European belligerents to consider peace.

The senate did not propose to invade the jurisdiction of the state department. He said, "nor to put any obstacle in the way of the president, whose cares it is our desire to lighten, but as the senate has the responsibility for our foreign relations and as we have reached a crisis which is hourly drawing us closer to the European vortex, I entertain the hope that this body can yet find a basis for a peace policy."

NATIONAL FANATICISM.

"One reason for the interest the civilized world has in seeing Germany beaten, and seeing that she knows why she is beaten, lies in a certain fanatical quality of the German mind." Thus states the Wall Street Journal, a noted pro-British publication. Then it continues and says, further: "It fails, even sometimes in the second generation in America, to adjust itself to the minds of other races."

"It is doubtless true that few Americans get the exact point of view of the Englishman, and probably fewer of the Englishman, and still fewer of the Americans. But each of these, undecieved by the similarity of language, is content that the difference is small. It is highly doubtful if the world would really be the gainer if both races thought exactly alike."

"But neither wishes to compel the other to be like him. The Frenchman is well content to be a Frenchman, but the last thing in his logical mind is the attempt to compel other races to be Frenchmen. In the same way the Briton is content that the difference shall exist. It is highly doubtful if the world would really be the gainer if both races thought exactly alike."

"But neither wishes to compel the other to be like him. The Frenchman is well content to be a Frenchman, but the last thing in his logical mind is the attempt to compel other races to be Frenchmen. In the same way the Briton is content that the difference shall exist. It is highly doubtful if the world would really be the gainer if both races thought exactly alike."

"The German, however, says, 'If you are not a German, you ought to be one. If I cannot make you a good live German, I shall do the next best thing, and make you a good dead one.' That is why the conquered French provinces are unreconciled, after half a century of occupation, and why Poland, in a century and a quarter, has never really become Russian, in the sense that the Boers and French Canadians draw their profits and do their work in that surprisingly intelligent partnership, the British Empire."

"It is when a man believes fanatically that he becomes dangerous, until finally the world, in self-protection, eliminates or converts him. In the centuries ago people believed in their religion so much that they burnt others alive in order to secure their eternal future. The process was logical, if you believe that burning alive will save a soul from eternal torment, you necessarily believe that it is your duty to adopt that drastic remedy."

"It is because the German believes it to be his mission to impose German methods and German habits of thought upon people who have their own methods and their own way of thinking, that the world must show something more than passive resistance to such pressure. The nations of the world must live together, and the only way to do so is for each to make allowances for the point of view of the others."

county or district conventions to voice the will of the voters of the state in making their suggestion.

MONEY NEEDED?

Following repeated emphatic denials by the White House that Henry Morganthau, ambassador to Turkey, contemplated resigning from the diplomatic corps to aid Mr. Wilson in his campaign for re-election, the White House now admits that these reports were true and that Mr. Morganthau has resigned, and for that purpose. It is asserted, however, that the president has not definitely decided to accept Mr. Morganthau's resignation because of the well-known fact that it would be injurious to the diplomatic interests of the United States to make a change of ambassador at Constantinople at this time. There are those who are of the kind enough to believe that the acceptance of Morganthau's resignation depends chiefly upon how badly, in the president's estimation, that he needs the financier's political assistance.

THE PLUM TREE.

The time draws near for the quadrilateral shaking of this famous foliage. Also there are intermediate harvests, raised from lesser sprouts of the same root. Theoretically, when the campaigner comes around and asks your vote for some friend or leader, he is seeking to advance the interests of state and nation.

Interest in public affairs is most necessary, and many of our ills flow from lack of such interest. So when a man solicits your vote, it may be merely spontaneous enthusiasm for a righteous cause. But too frequently it is a task tactic bought and paid for. The plum tree is rich and fruitful. There are a great many men lacking capital and ambition enough for success, to whom a snug berth in a public building is the ideal life. They prepare themselves for this service, not by studying business administration, but by making themselves "solid" with the politicians.

The man who controls fifty votes is quite an autocrat in his own little kingdom. While our civic reformers are coasting their feet before the open fire on cool nights, the political worker is ever active. It is more recreation than work to him. He enjoys the chances of the game and the social life of campaigns.

In some hang-out or loafing place, or working through some organization, he gathers a little group around him. His underlings may not suspect that they are being led for ulterior purposes. They control the casting of ballots, and vastly influence primaries and elections, particularly the former. Politicians take off their hats to this force. No word of understanding may have passed, yet when the appointments are made, the claim of the political worker is not easily ignored.

ADVERTISING AS NEWS.

According to the old-fashioned idea, an advertisement was simply a business card. John Smith respectfully informed the public that he kept a dry goods store on Main street, where he was prepared to give the public the best goods for the lowest prices. As the best goods are always cheapest, the public should always buy of Smith, etc., etc.

In the old days when newspapers and magazines were scarce, the public might read that kind of thing. Anything in print looked good to them. It made an impression on their minds, and no doubt helped a lot to sell goods.

Today any bright business man knows that his advertisement is a little section of news space where he can give the public the news about his store. He records there what special opportunities he has picked up and what special sacrifices he is prepared to make. It is just as interesting news as anything in the paper and read quite as intently.

If these fellows who live in ball bedrooms in some city and write the funny jokes about the primitive farmer, will go out into the country, perhaps the aforesaid farmer will give them a ride in his new six-cylinder automobile.

These million and a half people who were injured last year in industrial accidents were all exceptionally bright persons who had found some quicker way to handle dangerous machinery.

The reason why your clothing fades may be owing to scarcity of German dyes, and it may be because this is a mighty good time to work off poor colorings.

The annual consumption of chewing gum in this country is said to be only $35,000,000. Anyone who ever attended a ball game knows that these small figures can't be correct.

Preparedness is military power developed by your own country; militarism is military power developed by some other country.

The Daily Novelette

Genevieve, Maybelle and Isadora. Young Harpdupe was the son of one Of Millyuns' pretty daughters. And now that she's his better half, He's moved to better quarters. After struggling for two years and eight months with books and the English language in Paik's Business College, Genevieve Yirip received a diploma stating that she was a duly accredited stenographer. The business course only cost Genevieve's father $518, and she started right in with Beewings and Galloper at a salary of $6 a week.

Maybelle Southwest's law course at Leggo University cost her $1,000 more, but then it was worth it, for it lasted four years and the diploma was genuine sheepskin from a sheep, and at the end Maybelle was a regular practicing lawyer.

It took Isadora Dinkum six years to learn to be a trained nurse, and she had to pay for the training, but Isadora looked stunning in her uniform, and everybody knows what well wages trained nurses get, and she wouldn't be long before she would be able to pay it all back.

After they had been drawing salaries four days, two weeks and a month respectively, Genevieve married a man, Maybelle a businessman making $9 a week, Maybelle making $10, and Isadora became the wife of a traveling rum major whose weekly income was $11.30, and they all lived happily ever after.

"And the only tune—"
Villa, Villa out for fun,
Shot the gringos, and away he run!

And the only song he sings today
Is "Over the hills and far away!"
—FRENCH.

Flo, Flo, in the flat below,
Bangs away on the old banjo;
She plays from six till half past three,
And the only tune is "Mother Machree."
—BILL.

The girl who has the apartment
Plays one tune till she gets me vexed;
I love Hawaiians, but goodness me!
I'm tired of the "Beach at Waikiki."
—MAC.

Jane, Jane, the whole day long,
Fills the atmosphere with song;
And the only tune—there is no
Is "The Little Gray Home in the West."
—DAVE.

Claude, Claude, the man above,
Plays the fute like a man in love;
And the only tune he plays is this:
"Just a Little Love, Just a Little Kiss."
—MAE.

A musical sport across the court
Ceaselessly banga the pianoforte,
And the only tune we can hear him
bawling
Is that old "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling."
—OLIVE.

Of course you have a voiceless
sprite,
In the flat that's just above you,
Who loudly yells from morn till night,
"America, I Love You."
—US.

Why Hotel Clerks go Dippy.
"Please send me a hamper and a chisel, so I can break off some of this soap."
"What time does the 2:27 train leave?"
"You know a man in this town by the name of Jones?"
"Where can I have my lap dog manicured?"

"Can't you make that old gink in the next room stop snoring?"
"I lost my handbag when I changed cars down to the junction to come here. Can't you get it for me?"
"I want you to find out for me at once the quickest way to get to Peavey Junction, Mass."

"I tried to eat in your dining room and everything was cold but the ice water. What kind of a dump are you running here?"

The Farm Kid.
Don't tell me of the dear old farm;
I know the game from A to Z.
You see, I was born on a farm;
And it does not appeal to me.
Of course, there's nothin' much to do.
Exceptin' work from morn till night.

The only chance you get to rest
Is when there's isn't any light.
You get up when the faintest streak
Of light announces it is morn;
You do the chores and then you go
And toe the taters and the corn.
When you get simply tired out
And sick of every doggone chore,
You kin do as you please again,
And then go out and do some more.

You milk a dozen cows or so,
And then you plow and cultivate
Or pick potatoes big and small.
To rest yourself, that's simply great.
Of course, when it rains good and hard
You get from work a short respite;
You simply hang around the barn,
And mend the harness until night.

I don't like to make no complaint
About the life I live here;
The dear old farm they talk of ain't
Just what it's cracked up to be.
But still, I don't know as I'd change
If I should have a chance, beku
The work is hard, but it's a job,
No matter what a feller does.

Whitewater News.
Whitewater, April 24.—Yesterday special services were held throughout the day at the M. E. church. At the Sunday school at ten o'clock a short program was carried out, besides the regular Sunday school work.

Miss Williams gave the Easter message. At the regular morning service special music was furnished by the regular chorus choir, Mrs. A. Awsump of Chicago, who here sang a beautiful solo. Thirteen new members were taken in to the church. In the evening an Easter cantata was given by the Congregational choir and orchestra combined. There was a large attendance and it was pronounced to be exceptionally fine. The leading parts were taken by Mrs. L. R. Howard, Mrs. Earl Cox, Mrs. Phil Trautman, and Mrs. D. F. McGrew. Mrs. E. West, Miss Aylward, Mrs. Orrie Coburn, George Crumb and Harlow Smith. Miss Hazel Winn presided at the organ.

ALLIES' CONFERENCE MEANS UNITED FRONT

Expect Means for Presented Front of Questions to Come up in Paris.

London, April 24.—The conferences of the Allies going on in Paris are looked upon in well informed quarters as likely to develop means for presenting a united front on many questions outside of the settlement of territory, when any real prospect for concluding the war comes in sight. On their face these conferences are to discuss trade and commercial questions in which the Allies are mutually interested. But those who have had much to do in shaping the conferences say these questions really touch the matter of the very outset and subsequent peace terms, and that the generals in the field may in the first instance have to incorporate them in any preliminary arrangement leading up to the more elaborate protocols and treaties of the civil authorities. It is with this view, to know where they stand, and to have some common end to be definitely presented from the very outset, that these conferences of the Allies are looked upon as considerably more than an academic discussion of trade problems.

A Joint Front.
The need of being thus prepared at the outset to present a joint front, even in the first negotiations on the peace, has been made apparent by the experience of France in the conclusion of the Franco-German peace terms. The treaty of Frankfurt then made was preceded by preliminary conferences on the field, when the main lines of settlement were laid down. But all attention was absorbed at the time in the big questions—the cession of Alsace-Lorraine, the payment of an indemnity and the withdrawal of the German army from France. Our questions touching the future relations of the country in trade and otherwise were almost overlooked in the presence of the main questions. But the Allies have since learned that the Germans did not overlook these lesser questions. On the contrary they had a trade formula all ready, which was accepted without question in the general conference. This trade formula has bound France hand and foot ever since, up to the time the war smashed all treaties and agreements.

By the trade formula ingeniously presented at that time Germany was given the "most-favored nation" treatment for an indefinite period in the future in all commercial and tariff dealings with France. As a rule the "most-favored nation" treatment is granted by France for periods of ten years, so that her minimum tariff rates may be given to a country for reciprocal concessions granted. But by this clause slipped into the treaty at that time, France found later she was bound for all time to give Germany the same tariff concessions she allowed any other country. If France, through the operation of her minimum and maximum scale of tariff duties, allowed the United States a minimum rate for any particular reason through reciprocity, Germany was able to claim, exactly the same low rate, without reference to any concession she might make. This old clause, deftly worked into the peace settlement, was always after regarded by France as a serious embarrassment in her trade dealings with other countries, for every time she made a favor, an engagement with an outside country, Germany got the same thing.

Prepare Plans.
There is no purpose that the Allies shall be taken aware in the adjustment of the present war as France was in the former war, and that is one of the main reasons the Allies are fully canvassing their trade interests at the Paris conferences. Out of a pretty full understanding is expected of just what united attitude the Allies will take on trade questions, from the very outset of peace preliminaries, even on the field if that be necessary for their incorporation in the final adjustment.

GET RID OF HUMORS

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the Medicine to Take—Makes Pure Blood.

Dry, moist, scaly tetter, pimples, boils, and other eruptions come from humors, which may be either inherited, or acquired through defective digestion and assimilation. To treat these eruptions with drying medicines is dangerous. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the old reliable medicine, helps the system to discharge the humors, and improves the digestion and assimilation. Get Hood's Sarsaparilla from your druggist. It may be confidently relied upon to do its work. It purifies the blood, tones the stomach, and builds up the whole system. It goes to the roots of diseases, and its beneficial results are permanent. It sets things to rights in the system. Remember to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, because nothing else acts like it and nothing else can take its place.

The Average Dentist Hates To Treat Pyorrhoea Cases.

The unfortunate conditions make the work unpleasant. But what are suffering people to do? Are they to be allowed to go unaided to their ultimate death? I say death, because physicians everywhere are awakening to the fact that it is unavailing to treat patients for their ailments, when the mouth is not as it is a reeking cess pool of infection, which passes into the stomach, neutralizing all good a physician can do.

I have simply been forced to take up the study of how to stop this appalling condition so common among us. I've been at it over three years now, and I am convinced that my treatments are producing wonderful results.

If I present all the thankful expressions of my patients, I would have to start a library file.

You may rest assured that: The oozing and bad taste can be stopped. The angry red inflammation can be taken out. The spongy gums can be hardened to a healthy condition.

In fact, if my treatments don't make you feel like a new person, in general tone and condition, I don't want a cent of your money.

And in any event, my fees are about what they are asking for this new pyorrhoea cure in any other office that I know of in Wisconsin.

STATE'S ACTION ON BRIDGE QUESTIONS IS NOT UNEXPECTED

Really Was Contemplated During McGovern's Term As Governor—Philip's Letter Merely Matter of Form.

That some action on the part of the state of Wisconsin against property owners on the Milwaukee and Court Beloit bridges in Janesville and the Beloit bridges across the river at the bridge in that city, has been anticipated for some two years past.

The present action is the direct result of the complaint filed with the state railroad commission in the name of C. W. and C. S. Jackman of this city to test the right to construct a bridge over a river lot. This was decided last year by the commission and as a matter of form Governor Philip sent the findings and his letter to the attorney general for his consideration. This was done on the 21st of September, 1915.

Just why the delay in any action on the part of the attorney general until this date is not certain, unless it might accrue to the ultra progressive wing of the republican party, of which Attorney General Owen is a member and a talked-of candidate for the gubernatorial nomination.

The defendants in the action have no statements to make relative to the suit beyond stating that the buildings in question were erected many years ago after a decision by the legality of constructing such buildings on river lots had been passed on by the state supreme court and that this decision had never been tested by any further action in this direction.

The present action, however, is brought under a section of a water power law which was passed only a few years ago and on a special clause which has been declared unconstitutional by the state supreme court. Since the original decision was made the government has also had a survey of the river made and very recently notified the city commission through an official, that if any action was contemplated in the way of erecting new buildings on river lots they should be notified at once. Nothing, however, was said about buildings already erected.

SIR KNIGHTS ATTEND FT. ATKINSON CHURCH

Seventy-Eight Members of Janesville Commandery Take Part in Easter Service.—Call on W.

D. Hoard.

Seventy-eight members of Janesville Commandery, No. 2, Knights Templar, thirty-four of them from this city, attended the Easter morning service of the First Congregational church at Fort Atkinson, upon the special invitation of the pastor, the Reverend D. G. Grubb, who is a member of the order. The Sir Knights took part in the service, using the special ceremony for Easter day.

Besides the delegation from Janesville, there was a large number of members of the commandery who reside at Fort Atkinson and attendance, as well as members from Monroe, Evansville, Edgerton and Milton Junction.

The church service the Sir Knights called upon Ex-Governor W. D. Hoard, who has been a member of the Janesville Commandery for twenty-five years, to pay their respects to him. Gov. Hoard was completely surprised. He responded with a few brief remarks of appreciation. A buffet luncheon was served to the members of the commandery at the Masonic hall.

Those from Janesville made the trip in automobiles. They were: George W. Allen, Claude F. Aiken, J. N. Bleasdale, P. H. J. Bolton, F. C. Binnewies, C. Campbell, Chas. E. Custer, George Drummond, W. RED SOX IN FORM; DEFEAT EVANSVILLE Kakuske Pitches First Class Ball and Local Team Wins 3 to 2 in Sunday's Game.

Kakuske pitched the Red Sox to a creditable victory over a nine from Evansville Sunday afternoon, the Janesville team winning the close tilt by the score of three and two. This was Kakuske's game and he proved himself in form, as he allowed the Evansville team three hits and until the ninth inning, Evansville did not have a chance to score.

The Red Sox were decked out in their nifty new "Easter" suits and consequently could not have lost the game had they tried. They played a double-header, winning the early contest from a team that had been routed in hopes of checking the Sox. The score of this game was eight to six. Victory pitched this game for the Sox against Evansville.

The second game was the best played by the Sox this year as Evansville had a fast team composed of amateurs and players on the city nine. The game went scoreless for six innings, both teams playing a great defensive game.

In the seventh the Sox pushed over a rally that counted three runs, and won the game. Kakuske hit a solo second when Roberto drove out a clean single, scoring the pitcher. Dopp got a free ticket and Viner scored the two runners with a center field drive.

The Red Sox were again in the stage an eleventh hour rally to overcome the lead and a hit with three on bases scored two runs. Then Kakuske tightened and pitched himself out of a hole.

GOSSARD CONTRACT WILL BE EXECUTED TOMORROW MORNING

Last Procedure Necessary.—Firm Will Begin Alterations Within Several Weeks.

The final signatures which bind the contract for Janesville's new manufacturing plant, the Gossard contract, will be made tomorrow morning. This was the decision of the Janesville Commercial club directors at their weekly meeting and luncheon this afternoon.

The industrial committee, announced the return of the contract submitted by the club to the Gossard people. This was favorable to the correct manufacturing and the signatures of their heads were attached to the document. This now makes possible the execution of the contract when Secretary Kuhn and President J. A. Craig of the Commercial club will sign the contract.

A communication from S. S. Gossard informed that his company was desirous of coming to the city immediately to make changes and alterations in the building purchased so as to be ready to open active operations as soon as is possible. Considerable work will be necessary on the building to conform to the steel fire code and to make it suitable for the correct firm.

H. H. Bliss, chairman of the public utility committee, was authorized to appoint as many additional members to his committee as he saw fit for the conference to be held with the owners of the Coop and Lent circles, who will be in Janesville after the alterations of the grounds and buildings of the Janesville Park association in accordance with the idea of making Janesville the show's winter headquarters.

Mr. Bliss will appoint members of the Park association board to co-operate with him.

The matter of the semi-monthly bulletin to members came up for discussion with the result of a decision to continue the publication of the bulletin for the benefit of all members of the Commercial club so as to give each individual an insight into matters of the club and its affairs. It was also suggested that any member of the club wishing information on any matter or any member having a suggestion to make call on Secretary Kuhn.

President Craig requested that chairman of all standing committees to gather at once with the purpose of arranging and outlining their work for the coming year. Meetings are to be held at the office of the club, arrangements for which can be made with Secretary Kuhn.

STOP SUNDAY GAMES ON PUBLIC PROPERTY

Prohibit Sunday Games When They Are Not Played on Properly Enclosed Diamonds.

City officials and police put down a ban on Sunday baseball on all public and private property within the city limits, where the diamonds are not properly enclosed. Several games in the city parks were stopped by Mayor Lester and the police officers yesterday, and the young players informed that they could use the city parks on week-days, with no objections so long as conduct was above reproach. But should the officials refuse to allow this year.

There are no objections whatever to have the boys use the diamonds in the parks on private property on week days and we sincerely hope that they enjoy themselves and have all the fun and sport that is due them. On Sundays, however, we ask the boys to refrain from playing baseball, except on the enclosed diamonds, and away from private property and residences," said Mayor Fathers this morning.

Playing ball at the Park association on Sunday is a matter that has been considered in the ban to be enforced by the city. Protests were made this morning by several citizens against the Sunday ball at the city parks to Mayor Fathers.

BEVERLY THEATRE.

Robert Edison on Thursday. "The Cave Man" in which Robert Edison will be featured at the new Beverly Theatre on Thursday, is a story of the evolution of a man, inspired in one of its leaders by the folly and superficiality of society and details graphically how a man, picked hapazard from the submerged south is made to grow and expand into a valuable member of worth while society by the careful nursing of a spark implanted in the brain of a coal heaver. The spark flares up and envelopes his whole being and he likes the sensation for a while, but when becoming tired, he fights against its growing brilliancy and returns to his old haunts and associates to find he is no longer one with them. Now, fate takes a hand and the brain that has been taught to think, guides the hand of its owner in the fashioning of a device that reaps a harvest of golden dollars veritably forcing him back to that plane of human endeavor and worth that stamps the man of value to society.

In producing "The Cave Man," Director Marston spared neither pains nor labor, used every known device and camera trick to enhance the value of its situations and with Mr. Edison, Fay Wallace, Lillian Burns and George Beck, in the enactment of the principal characters turned out a screen story, that for brilliancy, consummate artistry in the portrayal of the characters and photographic achievement, sets a standard of exceptional quality. It is in five parts and is the most typically representative Blue Ribbon Feature yet released by the Vitagraph Company.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

"Peg O' My Heart" one of the best stage stories New York has sent this way in many seasons, is again to be with us Sunday, April 30, evening only, at Myers theatre, under the direction of Oliver Morosco, who announces this engagement as the final tour of the Manners' comedy under his management. Mr. Morosco is a producer who believes in maintaining the standard of his productions, and this excellent idea will be exemplified by the company, he has personally chosen for "Peg's" farewell trip to the far west.

Florence Martin, a talented young actress who played the role of "Peg," during the Boston and Philadelphia runs, is to head the cast to be seen here. Miss Martin has made an extraordinary success in the part and according to eastern reviewers, she outshines all her illustrious predecessors in the role.

Mr. Morosco has surrounded Miss Martin with a cast of principals, that will make "Peg's" farewell visit a memorable one. Fred L. Tiden will be seen as "Jerry," the baronet, York Brakine as Alario, Madeline L'Estrange as the stately Mrs. Chichester, and Lillian Kemble Cooper as Ethel, the beautiful society girl.

SYNOPSIS.

Little Helen Holmes, daughter of General Holmes, railroad man, is rescued from imminent danger on a scenic railroad by George Storm, a new boy. Storm, a young womanhood, Helen saves Storm, now a fireman, her father, and his friends, Amos Rhineland, Rhineland, and Robert Segrave, promoter, from a threatened collision. Satisfactory employment by Segrave, a General Holmes' survey plans, of the cut of line for the Tidewater, Helen goes to work on the Tidewater. Helen recovers the survey plans from Segrave, and though they are taken from her, she accidentally made proof of the survey blueprint. Storm is employed by Rhineland. Spike, a defuncted by Segrave, is the turn saves her and the night away contracts when Segrave kidnaps her. Helen and Storm win for Rhineland a race against Segrave for right-of-way. Helen, Storm and Rhineland rescue Spike from Segrave's men. Spike sues Segrave to protect Rhineland. Helen and Helen save Spike from death in the burning court house. Vein in Segrave's mine pinches out. Segrave sues it and sells it to Rhineland. The mine is relocated. Rhineland gives Helen and George each one-third of the Superfluous mine stock. Segrave's scheme to prevent payment for the mine is spoiled.

FOURTEENTH INSTALLMENT HELEN'S RACE AGAINST TIME

A fortnight spent at the Hotel Hollywood went very rapidly for Helen Holmes. The princely munificence of her foster uncle, Amos Rhineland, in making her again through his gift a substantial interest in the Superfluous mine, a young woman of large means, had restored her to social responsibilities. These were hers by right of birth and inheritance but she had been deprived of them by the untimely death of her father.

Nor was her benefactor a man to do things by halves. During the time that Helen was his guest in the city, he seemed an unusually busy man. Always fully occupied, his time now was hardly his own, so frequent were his dashes in and out of town, and so many his engagements. And during this time something of an air of mystery surrounded his movements despite all he could do to make them appear as of ordinary routine imposed on him by his railroad interests. To Helen's frequent queries as to what he was doing day after day, Rhineland returned answers which no doubt seemed to him to satisfy her. But Helen perceived these were mere evasions calculated to put her off and kept her in ignorance of what he really was doing.

What ostensibly was most on his mind was that Helen should make all preparations for resuming a social state of life to which she had been for some strenuous time a stranger.

He had already restored to her service, after diligent inquiry, the faithful maid with whom Helen had parted when she left her father's house.

On the morning that Helen walked with her maid out of the hotel and stepped into Rhineland's car, the sun was shining in a clear sky. Helen was driven from the city rapidly north along the Santa Barbara boulevard until the party entered the country familiar to her for many years—the anyons and foothills of the San Pablo valley.

“Can You Forgive Me?”

“Why, Uncle Amos,” she said suddenly, “where are you taking me? We are getting close to Signal.”

“We are going to Signal,” he replied quietly.

“What, pray, are you going to do at Signal?” demanded Helen.

“I’ve a number of things to do there,” returned Rhineland unperturbed. “But I can’t do them until we get there, so why worry about it?”

Rhineland only looked straight ahead and preserved an unbroken silence: a silence that Helen, herself, was not unwilling to break as the car sped on toward the iron gates that guarded the entrance to her father's former estate. Would it turn in there, she asked herself, or continue on up the bay road?

The great gates were wide open and a lodgekeeper busied himself close to one of them. Helen was not left long in suspense. Apparently, Rhineland's driver had had his orders for his employer gave none, but the heavy car, scarcely slackening speed, swerved through the open gates and the lodgekeeper lifted his cap as the party swept past. Something in his salute awoke old memories—could he be the same who had served her father? she asked herself. “That man,” she remarked to Rhineland, “looks exactly like father's old keeper.”

PAST WINTER HAS BEEN VERY MILD IN RUMANIA

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Bucarest, Rumania, April 24.—This winter has been the mildest which Rumania has experienced in more than twenty years. Snow and rain combined reached a total of only eleven millimeters in December, which is less than a third of the normal. The lack of severe weather has been fortunate in view of the shortage of fuel.

BEVERLY THEATRE.
Billie Burke in “Peggy” on Tuesday. Staged by Thomas H. Ince.

Like a merry little whirlwind, Peggy from America upsets the traditions of the pretty Scottish mountain hamlet where she goes to live after her father's death. Billie Burke stars in “Peggy,” which is the opening bill at the new Beverly Theatre on Tuesday.

An orphan and heiress, Peggy Cameron is a lively member of New York's exclusive set. There comes to her a letter from her uncle in Scotland, offering her a home with him. Peggy accepts the invitation and comes breezing into the little town of Woodkirk. In the Scottish highlands, one bright Sunday morning, her automobile causes consternation among the villagers.

Andrew Cameron. (William H.

Thompson) the uncle, is a dour old Scot, who doesn't approve of Peggy or her car. He and the minister, Rev. Donald Bruce (William Desmond), surprise Peggy working under her machine in overalls. Her uncle is shocked and forbids her ever to appear again in masculine garb.

Nevertheless Peggy dons her cousin's masculine dress one night and goes for a spin. It starts to rain and the automobile gets stalled. Peggy goes into a village inn for shelter, and on coming out bumps into the minister. He tries to rebuke her, but Peggy runs home in high glee. With the children, however, she gets along famously.

While Uncle Andrew and the minister are sitting in judgment on a girl who has been indiscreet, Peggy breaks in upon them to demand that they fix the blame on the man. He proves to be Colin, Andrew's son, and a marriage is the happy ending of the drama.

Then Peggy decides to leave Woodkirk and her relatives. They have come to love her, but their pleadings that she stay are of no avail. But at last comes the Rev. Donald Bruce, with an appeal from the heart that keeps Peggy in Woodkirk, as the minister's bride.

Is he Charlie Chaplin? See him at Myers Theatre, Thursday, Friday or Saturday, April 27, 28 or 29.

CHARLOTTE WALKER.

At the Apollo tonight in “The Trail of the Lonesome Pine.” Supporting Miss Walker, The Roberts, Thomas Meighan, Earl Fox, Park Jones and other members of the Lasky all-star stock company.

The distinguished star who will be seen for the 7:30 show only at the Apollo tonight in the Jesse L. Lasky production, “The Trail of the Lonesome Pine.” She was selected by John Fox, the author of the book, to play the role of “June,” when his wonderful story of the Virginia mountains was dramatized for the speaking stage. Miss Walker is a Southern girl and Mr. Fox considered her the ideal heroine for his story.

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

Pearl White, world famous as the heroine of the serials, was born in Missouri and broke into things theatrical by the “Uncle Tom's Cabin” route, that great nursery of histrionic talent. For several years she was connected with various road shows, and then obtained an engagement with a circuit. For two or three years she worked under “the big top” and then went back to the stage where she has been ever since, playing with some of the best and some of the worst companies in existence, as she expresses it. Three or four years ago she received an offer to appear in pictures.

Miss White possesses a marked individuality upon the screen—she resembles no other player before the public. For nerve and willingness to take chances while working before the camera she has few equals in pictures.

NERVES UNNECESSARY.
SAYS GLADYS HULETTE.

“I do not believe it is necessary for an actress or any other girl to have nerves,” says Gladys Hulette.

Miss Hulette, besides being a very pretty girl, is an athletic one. Gladys in a scarlet sweater and cap, she may be seen any morning in New Rochelle, N. Y., taking a brisk early morning walk long before many people have turned out of their beds.

“I find it quite necessary to keep in good trim. There are so many different things required of a motion picture actress that she must be ready for every emergency. I find taking long walks and living as much as possible out of doors eliminates nerves,” she says.

Willard Mack, Gerda Holmes and Clara Whipple head the cast of a big feature, temporarily entitled “His One Big Chance.” This is a newspaper story of unique and powerful character.

The Minnesota lumberjacks voted the Mutual Traveler the most beautiful girl they had ever seen in their lives when she visited them for the filming of “See America First.”

Also for illusions! William Farnum man of mighty prowess in stirring tales of brute strength, is the champion pool and checker player of the Lambs Club.

BEVERLY THEATRE.

“Dollars and the Woman” on Wednesday.

Ethel Clayton shares with Tom Moore, the stellar roles in the new Lubin multiple reel feature “Dollars and the Woman” at Beverly Theatre on Wednesday from Albert Payson Terhune's famous story “Dollars and Cents,” a most elaborate photoplay production directed by Joseph Kaufman.

At the Lubin studios the many friends of Ethel Clayton call her the “drawing-room actress” and an apt description it is too, for Miss Clayton lives to every play in which she is filmed a charm of personality that is a reflection of cultured tastes, wide experience, and firm convictions that are exclusively her own. She joined the Lubin players with a long record of stage successes and in adapting her gifts to the demands of the screen she had the advantage of a facility of technique that only comes through wide experience.

Miss Clayton has one consistent hobby—books. In her apartment the book cases completely encircle the library, continue on into and around the drawing room on through a hall way, and on into and part way around her dressing room. It is rare indeed to see Miss Clayton without a book. When she motors she has three or four books with her; when she isn't working before the camera she is tucked away either in her dressing room or a comfortable corner of the dressing room reading. Ask her what she likes and she will tell you, “good books”; ask her what she considers good books, and she will tell you “almost anything except cheap fiction.”

“Dollars and the Woman” in which Miss Clayton is afforded exceptional opportunity for her rare talent will be seen at the Beverly Theatre on Wednesday.

CONCERT AT BEVERLY.

Prof. Inkman of Milwaukee will give a pipe organ orchestra concert at the Beverly Theatre on Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The children of the State School for the Blind will be the guests of the management.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Why Charlie Chaplin is Popular.

Charlie Chaplin is well and favorably known to many millions of people who are distributed over a large portion of the civilized globe, yet he has detractors in plenty, and the reason therefor is not hard to find when you view his case from their angle. A majority of people expect to derive their laughs from situations explained by words, and who ever heard Charlie Chaplin talk?

The greatest asset of this noted comedian is his ability to portray in pantomime that which requires dialogue and scenery for the so-called legitimate actor to expound. Therefore, it is not at all hard to understand the unusual interest manifested in the forthcoming management of “The Charlie Chaplin Revue” in which “Is He Charlie Chaplin?” is the featured attraction.

In Chicago, New York, and, in fact all over the country, the people asking themselves, “Is this the real Chaplin, or am I seeing double?”

The management wishes to emphasize the fact that this is not a motion picture and that the real human being, in the flesh, will positively appear at each performance.

“The Charlie Chaplin Revue” will be the attraction at the Myers theatre three days, on April 27, 28 and 29, matinee Saturday, and it is said this company constitutes the best vaudeville road show at present on tour at popular prices.

AT THE APOLLO.

“The Rosary” a Big Production.

At the Apollo theatre tomorrow one of the best productions of the year, the 7-reel Selig Red Seal Play, “The Rosary,” will be presented for the benefit of St. Patrick's church by the ladies of the church. Seldom before has the motion picture been shown in such a finished production, both from the dramatic and artistic standpoint. Critics have declared it to be one of that rare class which can justly be called “masterpieces.”

The story, which has for its chief characters Father Kelly, a priest, a young man and his wife, is too well known to need any retelling. It is sufficient to say that in film it does justice to the novel and the play. Kathryn Williams, Charles Clary, Wheeler Oakman, Frank Clark and Eugenie Bessner are among the well-known favorites who appear in the list.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, you will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowel, which cause normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling all out of sorts, active bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women, as well as men, take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then just to keep in the pink of condition.

Why Not Get Rid of Eczema?

If your skin itches and burns with eczema or any such tormenting, unsightly skin disease, simply wash the sore places with Resinol Soap and hot water, dry, and apply a little Resinol Ointment. Usually the itching stops INSTANTLY. You no longer have to dig and scratch, sleep becomes possible, and healing begins. That is because the soothing, antiseptic Resinol medication arrests the action of the disease, and almost always restores the tortured, inflamed skin to perfect health—quickly, easily, and at little cost. Prescribed by doctors for over 20 years, and sold by every druggist.

What the Right Soap Does for Your Skin

Money cannot buy a purer, more cleansing toilet soap than Resinol Soap. And the healing Resinol medication it helps to keep the complexion clear, fresh, and beautiful.

“He Fell in Love With His Wife.”

Supporting Florence Rockwell, the beautiful star in the Pallas Picture production “He Fell in Love With His Wife” coming on the Paramount program to the Apollo Theatre on Wednesday is Lydia Yeomans Titus, the popular actress of middle aged parts.

Mrs. Titus, who will be remembered by everyone as one of the famous Yeomans family gives a wonderful characterization as Bridget Malony, the slovenly, lazy, rum drinking housekeeper and cook for James Heicoroff, the downcast farmer. Her make-up of the traditional Irish cook, short and stout, a regular Belfast countenance with short upturned nose and a long upper lip is a wonderful caricature. It would be impossible by a careful search of the Emerald Isle to find a more typical Bridget.

The scenes showing Bridget entertaining her friends with a big spree and its consequences from a big and very amusing part of this dramatic film play.

TOBACCO GROWERS ARE STEAMING SEED BEDS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Madison, Wis., April 24.—Some of the tobacco farmers around Stoughton are making a new trial on the preparation of their tobacco seed beds. Remarkable results have been obtained under direction of the university in the steaming of tobacco plant beds. This process kills the weed seed and sterilizes the soil. A short cut in accomplishing the same results is being tried by farmers through the use of pouring gasoline and kerosene on the seed beds before planting and then touching the match. One farmer who tried it last year was not satisfied with the results as he was with steaming. A number of other tobacco raisers are making the experiments this year. Stoughton is the center of the tobacco raising section in Dane county.

Heart and Home PROBLEMS

—By—
MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to
MRS. THOMPSON
in care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty years old and I am going with a young man five years older than I am. He asked me to marry him, but I refused because he is so selfish. I love him with all my heart and try to please him in every way I can without considering my own feelings. But he is continually doing something that hurts me and makes me feel that I could not be happy if I were married to him. A great many times I have gone somewhere to please him when I have been so tired after working all day that I didn't think I could stand it. What would you advise me to do? I know he loves me more than any other girl, but he loves himself more than anything in the world. PERPLEXED.

Try being selfish yourself. When you are too tired or not inclined to go somewhere with him, say so. If he gets the idea that you are the one to be considered and not he, it may make him more considerate and less selfish. An unselfish person seems to bring out all the selfishness there is in a selfish person. I believe that you can make him think of you before himself if you try. In order to do this remember you must consider yourself first.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a muddy complexion and also pimples on my cheeks. Can you name an inexpensive remedy? DOLLY.

A cup of hot water taken half an hour before breakfast will clear the complexion. This will be found especially beneficial to the person troubled with constipation. The plain water is unpleasant, a pinch of salt will give it flavor. Do not put too much salt in or the solution will act as an emetic.

Pimples and blackheads are the result of so many different causes that what will cure them for one person will be useless for another, and so if faithful trials of all external remedies do not benefit a physician should be consulted.

An excellent treatment begins by washing the face with liquid green soap and a brush. Then an application of paste made from dowers of sulphur and camphor spirits is smeared over the face and allowed to stay on over night. In the morning after the face is washed it is wiped over with glycerine. The latter may be omitted, if desired, but it is good.

In order to improve the condition and texture of the skin a bath should be taken every day. It is not in the habit already of doing it, and a brush instead of a cloth used, because the former is more stimulating in effect. Once a day the face must be scrubbed lightly with a complexion brush, for it is of the utmost importance that circulation should be active and pores freed from impurities.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Last year I was going with a young man and we played tennis together several times. The last time we played he left his racket and shoes at my house. In January he stopped going with me and started to go with another girl. I still like him and would like to go with him again. Would it be all right now to tell him that his racket and shoes are at my house? BLUE EYES.

He ought to know where his racket and shoes are, if he wants them. Very truly, he can come and get them. Don't write.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you kindly have published as soon as convenient the proper form of invitation to be sent out? I am about to issue invitations for the girls' card party, to be given in the afternoon, for a girl friend of mine who is to be married shortly. The girls invited are friends of hers and naturally I do not know them very well. LORAIN.

A formal invitation should be worded as follows: Miss Mary Evans requests the pleasure of your company at cards in honor of Miss Helen Brown on Saturday afternoon, April twenty-nine, at two o'clock, 78 Lawn Street.

An informal invitation worded to suit yourself I should think would be better than a formal one.

Harry's Wife

"Complains about the furnace!" exclaimed Mrs. Ames. "I never heard of such a thing."

Yes, Bertha wants us to put in a gas furnace. This one is so dirty, she insists. There was weakness in Mrs. Folsom's smile.

"One would think that when you had been kind enough to take her into your home she would be appreciative. Mrs. Ames looked indignant.

"Oh, no. She is condescending to remain under our humble roof. We are under obligations to her for her condescending toleration. Mrs. Folsom replied.

"Well, if that is it, I would not let the obligations pile up too high," laughed Mrs. Ames.

"Yes, we need new electric fixtures and a gas range, porch chairs. Oh, the list is too long to enumerate," proceeded Mrs. Folsom.

"Was she used to all manner of luxury?" asked Mrs. Ames.

"I do not know. I have never seen her home, but she seemed to be perfectly willing to come. Mrs. Folsom smiled reminiscently.

"It makes Frank perfectly furious to have her propose wholesale alterations as if the place belonged to her and we were old pensioners who had been kindly taken in because we had no home."

"I can imagine what a bit that would make with your husband. There was an amused look on Mrs. Ames' face.

"I do not believe Harry will have much of a voice in the affairs of his own home. I do think it is so pleasant where both the homemakers are allowed to express their individuality in the arrangements and furnishings," continued Mrs. Ames after a pause.

"If he can get the money together to pay for the furnishings it will keep him busy enough. He will not have any time for expressing himself in furnishings." There was a note of bitterness in the placid voice of Harry's mother.

"Well, it certainly is the proper thing for Harry to do. People who are so hard to please should have to get right out and hustle for themselves," said Mrs. Ames decidedly. "It is the only way to make them appreciate what has been done for them."

"I suppose it is and I mean to insist that they go, but I can see no way that Harry is to do it," said Mrs. Folsom sadly.

"Now, don't worry about them. You do not know but facing some hard condition might make a woman of Bertha. There is good material there." Mrs. Ames' tone was cheerful.

"Yes, she is very bright and capable. If she only turned her mind to work, I am sure," acquiesced Harry's mother.

"Well, then this is the way to make her want to plan and economize, so it is all for the best," Mrs. Ames smiled into her friend's eyes.

SIDE TALKS

—By—
RUTH CAMERON

"Oh, dear, I'm so excited!" said my little neighbor, when I dropped in to see her one day last week.

"Why, what has happened?" I asked.

"I didn't know whether to expect bad news or good news. My sister's cheeks were pink and her eyes starry; there was an anxious, strained expression on her face."

"Nothing has happened," she said. "It's just what's going to happen—or isn't. That's the trouble. My sister and I have been talking over some plans for the summer. We have a perfectly dandy scheme, but there are so many people to be considered, and I'm so afraid they won't all agree with it. I'm trying to think how to handle them all, and how to arrange things so that everybody will be happy, and I'm so excited that I haven't done a bit of work this morning. Just look at my kitchen. It seems as if I couldn't wait for the summer to come, so I can be sure we can have things the way we want them."

As I looked at that flushed, eager face I was full of sympathy for my little neighbor.

She Just Ached to Get at the Future. Now if I should tell my little neighbor that three months from now she may feel very different about this scheme of hers—I know just how indignant and incredulous she would be. And yet that is true.

ON MENTAL TIPTOES

One spring some years ago I was seized with a desire to spend the following winter in a certain place. In a frenzy of planning I began to attack everything and everybody that stood in my way. Several things I did and said in this way that I now heartily ashamed of. The way was made clear—I could have what I wanted. But the summer brought changes in conditions and in my point of view, and when the fall came I no longer wanted it.

That has been a lesson to me, not to plan too far ahead.

Everyday Wisdom

Isn't it a comfort?

An ostrich in the home will gladden the household with his song and keep mother in plumes for her hat.

The first bathroom sponge was domesticated in 1643.

A clove is not much of an improvement.

Queen bees do not sting, but a fellow does not usually have the opportunity of selecting his bee.

(Protected by Adams Newspaper Service)

my only lesson, but my sharpest. Letting Things Work Themselves Out. To be sure, I still get excited over plans, and I try to recall that experience and have a little more patience. A little more trust that if I let things work out until it is time to act they may have partially adjusted themselves.

"All things work together for good to them that love the Lord," you know. And if you think that only means church members, and you aren't, translate it as the angel did for Abou Ben Adhem, into "those who love their fellow-men."

In other words, be a little less selfish and a little more patient and trusting, and see if things don't adjust themselves pretty well without so much pushing and pulling on your part.

Household Hints

SALADS
Macaroni Ring Salad—Boil macaroni until tender and rinse free from all adhering starch in cold water. Chill thoroughly and cut in half-inch strips. Boil carrots until tender and cut in small dice. Mix two ingredients carefully, and serve on a bed of lettuce with mayonnaise or boiled cream dressing.

Water Lilies—Remove yolks from one dozen hard-boiled eggs. Press through sieve and add salt, pepper and mustard, with a small piece of butter, and enough vinegar to make a thick cream. Use glass dish to hold center for the water lily. Cut whites and place entire way around this for petals. You can use this as your centerpiece on your table or serve individually. Use glass dish to represent the water; in this place lettuce to form the leaves of your water lily.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING
Soak fish for a short time before cooking in strong salt water. This will remove the muddy taste that so often accompanies fish.

Make a shoe bag for those shoes that are under foot and in the dust. Take any kind of heavy cloth. Make the bag about two and a half feet long, and cut four pockets large enough to hold the shoes. Sew them on at bottom and run a rubber cord into them at top. This will hold the pockets shut and keep out the dirt. The pockets should be sewed with tape, and brass rings sewed onto corners to hang up by.

To Remove Dents From Furniture
—Dampen the dent with warm water. Fold a piece of brown paper five or six times and soak in warm water; lay the moistened paper (after water has dripped from it) over the dent; top of that a warm flatiron (not hot). The water evaporates the dent will come out.

THE TABLE
Egg Shortcake—Mix two cups of flour with one cup of sugar, one of shortening, three teaspoons of baking powder and a good pinch of salt. After beating one egg in a cup and mixing it in nearly a whole cup of milk, add the dry ingredients, roll out and bake till light brown.

Portia's Salad—One can of dry shrimps, one cucumber, one stalk of celery, one-half cup meat nuts. Dice cucumbers and celery and serve on head lettuce with rich yellow mayonnaise.

Royal Canapes—One-half tablespoon onion, three tablespoons butter, one-half cup mushrooms, one tablespoon flour, one cup milk and cream, boil five minutes; add the whites of two eggs, beat hard and dried. Served as rather thick pieces of bread, cut into squares and fried in butter. Serve hot with the yolks of eggs put through ricer and spread over top of each.

Oatmeal Cookies—Two and a half cups of oatmeal, two cups of brown sugar and one cup of water which has two beaten eggs and water which has previously had a teaspoon of soda dissolved in it. Roll out and bake till brown.

Gravy—Beat one cup of buttermilk or sour milk with three tablespoons of molasses and one teaspoon of soda. Add one cup of wheat flour, a cup of brown sugar and half a teaspoon of salt. Bake in a moderate oven.

Mayonnaise With Cream—Two eggs, one-fourth cup vinegar, one-half cup melted butter or olive oil, one-half cup sweet cream. Hard boil one egg, mash yolk fine with generous pinch of dry mustard, one-half teaspoon salt, red pepper to suit taste; beat up other egg, to which add mashed yolk, vinegar and sugar, place bowl in pot of boiling water, cook until it thickens; when partly cool add melted butter or oil, dropped in slowly. Beat well.

When ready to serve add cream, butter, pour over fruit or vegetable salad. For lobster, chicken or any meat, add a little sugar. This is an old recipe and is excellent; will keep for some time if only part is wanted.

Fried Frogs' Legs—Wash them and pour boiling water on, letting them stand in this water five minutes. Dry them on a napkin. Beat yolks of three eggs with a saltspoon of salt and pinch of cayenne pepper. Add one teaspoon lemon juice. Dip legs in this, roll them in cracker bread crumbs, shake all the dough off, hold here, dip again in eggs and crumbs, then fry in hot fat. Parsley is an appropriate garnish, also slices of lemon.

A word to the wise—to those who advertise. Use want ads every day; our word for it, they'll surely pay.

HOW TO STOP GROWING BALD

Is there any such thing as a "hair tonic" or a scalp tonic? If so, the young man who is just beginning to grow bald will be eager to try it. It is just as logical to think that as it is to believe that the ends of the fingers will make the nails grow faster as it is to believe that any alleged "hair tonic" rubbed into the scalp will cause a better growth of hair.

Why do men grow bald? That is a question upon which theorists have speculated wonderfully for hundreds of years, but men continue to grow bald as fast as ever. There is just one elementary fact which can be accepted by all, namely, that failure of nutrition of the hair follicle is the cause of baldness. Our own personal history is that men's heads tend to interfere with scalp nutrition by pressing upon the arteries, and at the same time prevents the natural preservative action of air and sunlight.

But anyway, nutrition of the hair follicle is deficient. Can it be improved by artificial means? Yes, by the use of a hair tonic. Massage of the scalp is the sure remedy. Massage must be done by the individual himself—and it is excellent exercise, too.

It must be done at least once a day, better two or three times a day, for about five minutes at a time. And it is most readily performed in the following manner:

Grasp the scalp with the open hand and, with firm pressure, endeavor to gather up a handful of scalp in a bunch. First one hand, for a few days, then the other, alternately, for it is really hard work. Keep it up.

PRECAUTIONS ARE TAKEN AGAINST DISEASE AT BORDER.

Columbus, N. M., April 24.—Extraordinary precautions are being taken by the army medical corps at the military base here and in the field to insure against the appearance of the dread typhus and typhoid fever among American troops.

Suggestion has been made to the soldiers here that they have their hair clipped close or their heads shaved to avoid vermin.

Nearly one hundred recruits brought from Columbus, Ohio, barracks, will be inoculated with the typhoid serum before they are sent to the interior.

Of the ten thousand men in the field, only two hundred and twenty have been vaccinated because of illness or injury. For the most part they are suffering from some minor illness or injury such as would result in time of peace.

Considering the hardships undergone by the soldiers this record is considered unusual.

Two hospital wards have been erected at the military base here.

THE SANTA CLAUS GIRL OF NEW YORK WILL WED.

Philadelphia, April 24.—Miss Olive May Wilson, the "Santa Claus Girl," was married here this afternoon in a Cavalry Protestant Episcopal Church to Birchall Hammer, son of a wealthy lumber dealer and a former University of Pennsylvania athlete.

"Santa Claus Girl," through her efforts thousands of children all over the country were made happy every Christmas. Her gifts were received by poor children as far south as Mexico and west as far as the Pacific coast.

Hammer, the bridegroom, has been a Santa Claus helper for two years. During that period he worked at Miss Wilson's side at Christmas time, wrapping parcels and packing them for children who would have had a cheerless Christmas had it not been for the Santa Claus Girl.

Snowflakes—To one beaten egg add one tablespoon of milk, a pinch of salt and enough flour to make a soft dough. Roll out very thin on a well-floured board, cut in strips about two inches by six and fry in hot frying fat. Dust well with powdered sugar to serve.

DES MOINES WILL HAVE CLEAN-UP FOR A WEEK.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Des Moines, Ia., April 24.—Governor Geo. W. Clarke, at the request of the Federated Women's clubs of Iowa, designated the week beginning today as "Clean-up Week" in Iowa.

Sixteen thousand women are behind the movement, inspired by devotion to the public welfare.

The governor says "they are anxious to establish higher ideals, better civic standards, better sanitary conditions, to minimize danger from fires, to make homes of the state and their surroundings more inviting and beautiful."

The people of the state are co-operating with the women in the "clean-up" movement and mayors of cities, newspapers and public officials generally are aiding.

WIFE OF GERMAN ENVOY AUTHOR OF A NEW PLAY.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Berlin, April 24.—Princess Matchild Lichnowsky, wife of the late German Ambassador in London, is the author of a new play just produced at the Theatre in Berlin. The play is a tragedy, in blank verse, called "A Game of Death."

THE first requisite of a soap for the toilet is mildness.

Mildness depends upon the quality of the materials used in the making, the absence of free alkali and the absence of bleaches, fillers and other foreign matter.

Ivory Soap is made of the best materials that can be bought. It contains no free alkali. Nothing is put into it to make it white, to increase its weight or to soften water.

That is why Ivory Soap is so mild that it can be used with comfort and safety on the tender skin of a child.

DRIVES AWAY HEADACHE

Rub Musterole on Forehead and Temples

A headache remedy without the dangers of "headache medicine." Relieves headache and that miserable feeling from cold or congestion. And it acts at once! MUSTEROLE is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister. Used only externally, and in no way can affect stomach and heart, as some internal medicines do.

Best for Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Croup, Sore Neck, Asthma, Neuralgia, Congestion, Pleurisy, Rheumatism, Lumbago, all Pains and Aches of the Back or Joints, Sprains, Sore Muscles, Bruises, Chilblains, Frosted Feet, Colds of the Chest (it often prevents Pneumonia). At your druggist's, in 25c and 50c jars, and a special large hospital size for $2.50. Be sure you get the genuine MUSTEROLE. Refuse imitations—get what you ask for. The Musterole Company, Cleveland, Ohio.

The Money in Stock.
A Chicago packer said once that the public seemed to think the beef packers make money as easily as did the country boy who witnessed the killing of a calf by a motorcar.

"No use talking," he drawled to a passerby, "that certainly is money in cattle."

"In the stock raising business, do you mean?" asked the stranger.
"No, not exactly. A motorcar ran over that calf a few minutes ago, and the driver got out and handed me $5."
"Five dollars? That's not much for a good sized calf."

"Yes, but, mister, the calf wasn't mine."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Help for Bronchial Trouble and Cough

"Foley's Honey and Tar Compound acts more like a food than a medicine." Mr. W. H. Richmond, Inglewood, Calif., says: "I wish to recommend Foley's Honey and Tar Compound as it has greatly benefited me for bronchial trouble and cough. It acts so well in harmony with nature that it is more like a food than a medicine."

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has a wonderfully quick way of soothing and healing the raw tickling surface of the throat and bronchial tubes. It eases the tightness over the chest, raises the phlegm easily, and helps the stubborn racking cough that is so exhausting and weakening.

It is the best medicine you can buy, and better than anything you can make, for coughs, colds, spasmodic croup, whooping cough, in gripe and bronchial coughs, hoarseness, tickling throat and stuffy wheezy breathing. It contains no opiates, and is acceptable to the most sensitive stomach.

GAVE HER WHAT GOLD COULDN'T BUY

Kenosha Woman Regains Health By Using Tanlac, The New Medicine.

It is always pleasant to hear the statement of a friend especially when that statement may prove of lasting benefit to ourselves. Thousands throughout the land are daily telling their neighbors how they may easily rid themselves of many of life's greatest trials. Their simple statements of facts hold forth the promise of a better life, happiness and contentment. Read what Miss Louise Hammond, of 510 Exchange Street, Kenosha, Wisconsin, has to say:

"For the past two or three years I have suffered tortures from stomach trouble and could get no relief at all. I tried everything suggested to me. After eating I would have a dull heavy feeling in my stomach that would last for two or three hours. I had severe headaches very often. I felt sleepy and tired and listless all the time. I just hated to move even. I lost my appetite and had to be very careful what I ate. Even then I would be distressed after my meals. I became nervous and run down and slept badly."

"I hardly knew which way to turn for relief when one day a friend made a most valuable suggestion to me. She advised me to begin using TANLAC, the new vegetable tonic. I secured a bottle and within a few days was feeling remarkably improved. My appetite returned and I got back energy. My digestion got better almost overnight. I now feel fine and think that TANLAC has given me permanent relief. I can sincerely advise all who suffer from stomach trouble to give the medicine a thorough trial."

TANLAC may be obtained here at Smith's Drug Store. Advertisement.

CHAPTER XIV

The Feast of Hurrahs

Mirapolis the marvelous was a bustling, roaring, wide-open mining camp of twenty thousand souls by the time the railroad, straining every nerve and crowding three shifts into the 24-hour day, pushed its rails along the foothill bench of Chigringo, tossed up its temporary station buildings, and signaled its opening for business by running a mammoth excursion from the cities of the immediate East.

Busy as it was, the city took time to celebrate fittingly the event which linked it to the outer world. By proclamation Mayor Cortwright declared a holiday. There were lavish displays of bunting, an impromptu trades parade, speeches from the plaza bandstand, free lunches and free liquor—a day of boisterous, hilarious triumphs, with, incidentally, much buying and selling and many transfers of the precious "front foot" or choice "corner."

Yielding to pressure, which was no less imperative from below than from above, Brouillard had consented to suspend work on the great dam during the day of triumph, and the reclamation service force, smaller now than at any time since the beginning of the undertaking, went to swell the crowds on Chigringo avenue. Mr. Cortwright had been inexorable, and Brouillard found himself uncomfortably emphasized as chairman of the civic reception committee.

It was after his part of the speech-making, and while the plaza crowds were still bellowing their approval of the modest forensic effort, that he went to sit beside Miss Cortwright in the temporary grand stand, mopping his face and otherwise exhibiting the after effects of the unfamiliar strain.

"I didn't know you could be so convincing," was Miss Cortwright's comment. "It was splendid! Nobody will ever believe that you are going to go on building your dam and threatening to drown us, after this."

"What did I say?" queried Brouillard, having, at the moment, only the haziest possible idea of what he had said.

"As if you didn't know!" she laughed. "You congratulated everybody. And the funny thing about it is that you didn't say a single word about the Niangua dam."

"Didn't? That shows how completely your father has converted me, how helplessly I am carried along on the torrent of events."

"But you are not," she said accusingly. "Deep down in your inner consciousness you don't believe a little bit in Mirapolis. You are only playing the game with the rest of us, Mr. Brouillard."

Gorman, Mr. Cortwright's ablest trumpeter in the real-estate boom, was holding the plaza crowd spellbound with prophetic outlining of the Mirapolitan future.

In the middle distance and back-grounding the buildings on the opposite side of the plaza, rose the false work of the great dam—a standing forest of sawed timbers, whose afternoon shadows were already pointing like a many-fingered fate toward the city of the plain. But, though the face of the speaker was toward the shadowing forest, his eyes ignored it. "The snow-capped Timavonis," the mighty Chigringo, and "the golden-veined slopes of Jack's mountain" all came in for eulogistic mention; but the massive wall of concrete, with its bristling parapet of timbers, had no part in the orator's flamboyant descriptive.

Brouillard loved Amy Massingale with a passion which, however blind it might be on the side of the higher moralities, was still keen-sighted enough to assure him that every plunge he made in the Mirapolitan whirlpool was sweeping him farther away from her.

He had transferred the power company's stock, minus a single share to cover his official standing on the power company's board, to Cortwright, and had opened an account at the Niangua National. The ninety-nine thousand nine hundred dollars had since grown by speculative accretions to the rounded eighth of a million which all financiers agree in calling the stepping stone to fortune.

He had regarded this money—as still regarding it—as a loan; his lever with which to pry out something which he could really call his own. But more and more possession and use were dulling the keen edge of accountability and there were moments of insight when the grim irony of taking the price of honor to pay an honor debt forced itself upon him. At such moments he plunged more recklessly, in one of them taking stock in a gold-dredge company which was to wash nuggets by the wholesale out of the Quadjenal bend, in another buying yet other options in the newest suburb of Mirapolis.

With the waning of the day of celebrations the temper of the street throngs was changing. It is only the people of the Latinized cities who can take the carnival spirit lightly; in other blood liberty grows to license and the thin veneer of civilized restraints quickly disappears. From early dawn the saloons and dives had been adding fuel to the flames, and light-heartedness and good-natured horseplay were giving way to sardonic humor and brutality.

In the short faring through the crowded street from the plaza to the Metropole corner Brouillard saw and heard things to make his blood boil. Twice before he reached Bongras' cafe entrance the engineer shouldered his way to the rescue of some badgered nucleus of excursionists, and in each instance there were frightened women to be hurriedly spirited away to the nearest place of seclusion and safety.

It was in front of Bongras' that Brouillard came upon Rev. Hugh Castner, the hot-headed young zealot who had been flung into Mirapolis on the crest of the tidal wave of mining excitement. Though Hosford—who had not been effaced, as Mr. Cortwright had promised he should be—and the men of his clique called the young missionary a meddlesome visionary, he stood in the stature of a man, and lower Chigringo avenue loved him and swore by him now and then when some poor soul, hastily summoned, was to be eased off into eternity.

When Brouillard caught sight of him Castner was looking out over the seething street cauldron from his commanding height of six feet of athletic man stature, his strong face a mask of bitter humiliation and concern.

"Brouillard, this is simply hideous!" he exclaimed. "If this devil's carnival goes on until tonight we shall have a revival of the old Roman Saturnalia at its worst!" Then, with a swift blow at the heart of the matter: "You're the man I've been waiting to see; you are pretty close in with the Cortwright junta—is it true that free whiskey has been dealt out to the crowd over the bar in the Niangua building?"

Brouillard said that he did not know, which was true, and that he could not believe it possible, which was not true. "The Cortwright people are as anxious to have the celebration pass off peaceably as even you can be," he assured the young missionary, trying to buttress the thing which was not true. "When riot comes in at the door, business flies out at the window; and, after all, this feast of hurrahs is merely another bid for business."

But Castner was shaking his head. "I can't answer for Mr. Cortwright personally. He and Handley and Schermerhorn and a few of the others seem to stand for respectability of a sort. But, Mr. Brouillard, I want to tell you this: somebody in authority is gratifying upon the vice of this community, not only today but all the time."

"The community is certainly vicious enough to warrant any charge you can make," admitted Brouillard. Then he changed the topic abruptly. "Have you seen Miss Massingale since noon?"

"Yes; I saw her with Smith, the cattleman, at the other end of the avenue about an hour ago."

"Heavens!" grunted the engineer. "Didn't Smith know better than to take her down there at such a time as this?"

The young missionary was frowning thoughtfully. "I think it was the other way about. Her brother has been drinking again, and I took it for granted that she and Smith were looking for him."

Brouillard buttoned his coat and pulled his soft hat over his eyes. "I'm going to look for her," he said. "Will you come along?"

in these salutes Castner bore his part like a man, expostulating first and hitting out afterward in a fashion that left no doubt in the mind of his antagonist of the moment.

"It was little less than a crime to turn your laborer loose on the town on such an occasion as this," said Castner, dealing out his words as frankly and openly as he did his blows.

Brouillard shrugged. "If I hadn't given them the day they would have taken it without leave. You'll have to pass the responsibility on to someone higher up."

The militant one accepted the challenge promptly.

"It lies ultimately at the door of those whose insatiable greed has built this new Gomorrah in the shadow of your dam." He wheeled suddenly and flung a long arm toward the half-finished structure filling the gap between the western shoulders of Chigringo and Jack's mountain. "There stands the proof of God's wisdom in hiding the future from mankind, Mr. Brouillard. Because a little section of humanity here behind that great wall knows the end of its hopes, and the manner and time of that end, it becomes demon-ridden, irreclaimable!"

At another time the engineer might have felt the force of the tersely eloquent summing up of the accusation against the Mirapolitan attitude. But now he was looking anxiously for Amy Massingale or her escort, or both of them.

"Surely Smith wouldn't let her stay down here a minute longer than it took to get her away," he said impatiently as a pair of drunken Cornishmen reeled out of Haley's place and usurped the sidewalk. "Where was it you saw them, Castner?"

"They were in front of Pegleg John's, in the next block. Miss Massingale was waiting for Smith, who was just coming out of Pegleg's, shaking his head. I put two and two together and guessed they were looking for Stephen."

"If they went there Miss Amy had her reasons. Let's try it," said Brouillard, and he was half-way across the street when Castner overtook him.

There was a dance hall next door to Pegleg John's barrel house and gambling rooms, and though the daylight was still strong enough to make the electric garishly unnecessary, the orgy was in full swing, the raucous clanging of a piano and the shuffle and stamp of many feet drowning the monotonous cries of the sidewalk "barker," who was inviting all and sundry to enter and join the dancers. Castner would have stopped to question the "barker"—was, in fact, trying to make himself heard—when the sharp crash of a pistol shot dominated the clamor of the piano and the stamping feet. Brouillard made a quick dash for the open door of the neighboring barrel house, and Castner was so good a second that they burst in as one man.

The dingy interior of Pegleg John's, which was merely a barrel-lined vestibule leading to the gambling rooms beyond, staged a tragedy. A handsome young giant, out of whose face sudden agony had driven the brooding passion of intoxication, lay, loose-fung on the sawdust-covered floor, with Amy Massingale kneeling in stricken, tearless misery beside him. Almost within arm's reach Van Bruce Cortwright, the slayer, was wrestling stubbornly with Tie Smith and the fat-armed barkeeper, who were trying to disarm him, his heavy face a mask of irresponsible rage and his lips bubbling imprecations.

"Turn me loose," he grunted. "I'll fix him so he won't give the governor's snap away! He'll pipe the story of the Coronado grant off to the papers!—not if I kill him till he's too dead to bury, I guess."

Castner ignored the wrestling three and dropped quickly on his knees beside Stephen Massingale, bracing the misery-stricken girl with the needed word of hope and directing her in low tones how to help him search for the wound.

But Brouillard hurled himself with an oath upon young Cortwright, and it was he, and neither the cattleman nor the fat-armed barkeeper, who wrestled the weapon out of Cortwright's grasp and with it menaced the babbling murderer into silence.

OLD JEFFERSON CITIZEN CALLED BY DEATH FRIDAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Jefferson, April 24.—Otto F. Stoppenbach, one of Jefferson's oldest and most respected citizens, died at his home on Friday, April 22, at the age of 73 years. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon under the auspices of Jefferson Lodge No. 9, F. & A. M. Mr. Stoppenbach was a Mason for the past thirty years. He served a term as registrar of deeds for Jefferson county and for the past ten years has served continuously as justice of the peace.

Dinner Stories

The stern father came unannounced into the parlor and was much shocked to see his daughter and her "young man" occupying the same chair.

"Sir," he said, shaking his head solemnly, "when I was courting my wife, she sat on one side of the room and I sat on the other."

"Well," replied the suitor, not in the least abashed, "that's what I should have done if I had been courting my wife!"

A country minister had just received his first call to the charge of a small church and his wife of course, was highly excited; so much so that she was obliged to tell everyone of the good news. One day she met a farmer's wife and began the conversation. "Do you know, Mrs. Hayden, she said, "my husband has just secured the incumbency of a church and I can't tell you how delighted I am."

"Yes," replied the sympathetic old lady, "I quite understand how you feel. I felt just that way when our pig won the gold medal at the fair last week."

"Your condition is very serious," said the doctor—"very serious indeed. What you need is an entire change of scene."

The patient seemed puzzled. "But doctor—" he began. "There's no but about it," insisted the physician. "A complete change of scene is the only thing that will cure you. By the way, what is your occupation?"

"I'm a scene shifter."
